

Balgo and Lugo

*Balgo has a mountain factory
That churns out lots of smoke
But Lugo just wants to play with
Those do-goody Bally Bo folk!*

Balgo has a big factory up in the mountains, where he spends his time cooking up potions, exploiting Bally Bo's natural resources, and making Really Big Machines.

He's trying to bring up his son Lugo to take over the family business, but Lugo will keep listening to those dratted do-gooding kids from Coshi Cottage and doing the right thing for the environment. Drives Balgo crazy.

Balgo and Lugo's house was struck by lightning a long time ago, and as a result Balgo doesn't trust nature one little bit, while it left Lugo with a general inability to know what's going on. He's not a bad kid, he just hasn't had a very environmentally-conscious upbringing.

All Lugo really wants is some proper friends who aren't the snivelling tale-telling Pookadoos that serve his dad!

